1. Most people have had a person or event that made a difference in their lives for better. That event or person may have helped determine a major decision or encouraged an attempt at something new, or just given confidence. How has such an event or person affected you or your life's path.?
2. There are a wide variety of volunteer services-- local, national, and international. Groups like Americorps, Peace Corps, Park Services, Doctors without Borders, the military, Kiwanis, even library boards contribute much to society but are time consuming, not well paid or paid at all, and under-appreciated. What do you think such volunteerism contributes to society or an individual? If you can, mention your experience and outcomes with volunteer activities.
3. Technology has become essential to everyday lives and will likely be a big part in the career you have chosen. However, technology has negative outcomes too, from spreading false, sometimes frightening information to isolating us from each other. How do you think it will impact your future, both personally and professionally?
